CHARLEROI'S CURB MARKET TO OPEN SATURDAY MORNING

Will be Located on Sixth
St. between Fallowfield
and Railroad

MANY FARMERS ARE EXPECTED

The Curb Market will open on Saturday morning, June 18th. The response from the farmers indicates that quite a number will be on hand with produce. Joseph Haube, chairman of the Farmer's Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and J. S. Heffner manager of the Chamber of Commerce, visited a number of the farmers within a radius of eight to ten miles of Charleroi and found that a number of big producers were ready to bring their produce to Charleroi at an early date. Paul Kohout will be one of the producers whose wagon will appear twice a week at the Curb Market. Mr. Kohout has several acres of cucumbers and last year during the cucumber season delivered more than fifty bushels per day. Joe Walker and Playford Wright will be among the producers. Also John Fredo and John Price are both raising an immense amount of produce and a large variety as well, and have both promised to be on hand with wagon loads of fresh produce on Saturday. About fifteen to eighteen farmers have already promised to be represented in the Curb Market. Joseph Haube will make arrangements to take care of the space on Sixth street between Fallowfield avenue and Railroad street.

The object of the Curb Market is not alone to bring produce direct from the farmers at a moderate cost but also to promote confidence and good-will between the city and country and while the farmer brings his produce here to sell, he will undoubtedly in turn buy from the merchant and thus there will be a happy interchange of commodities which will be to the interest of the whole community.

The women of Charleroi, and especially those who do the buying are asked to appear at the Curb Market on Sixth street early on Saturday morning to do their buying. The committee in charge of the Curb Market are anxious to make it of real service to the community and not for the selfish interest of any group and therefore will welcome any suggestions which will help to make it a success.

BIBLE CLASS TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

Between 40 and 50 members of the Men's Bible Class of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school will attend the Washington County Sabbath School convention at McDonald this evening, making the trip by auto. It is expected that fourteen machines will be utilized in carrying the members of the class to McDonald, where they will take part in the parade to be held at 7 o'clock this evening.

SHADE TREE COMMISSION IS COMPLETED

Monongahela has a Shade Tree Commission, a department permitted under the charter of cities of the third class, which has been doing some excellent work during the past few months. A small stretch of open street near the bridge at the eastern end of Main street has been beautified recently with trees and plants, and the city section of the Dry Run Drive has also been beautified by a number of Elm trees which have been planted on both sides of the highway within the city limits. Travelers passing that way have remarked that it would be a fine thing if Monongahela could secure a portion of the property along Dry Run, and particularly near the concrete bridge above the property of the Home Coal company and turn into a park. It would preserve to posterity one of nature's beauty spots, and give to the people a most delightful place for picnics and other outing purposes.

CHARLEROI DEFEATS LEAGUE LEADERS

The Charleroi team of the Press league took over the Allenport team, which has been leading the procession for some time, by a score of 7 to 1 in a game played at the local park Thursday evening. Features of the game were the home run clouts of Bill Phillips and Griffith, as well as the consistent batting and fine fielding of the Charleroi team. Griffith and Consonary were at the points for Charleroi, while Parkins and Gray did the twirling for Allenport, with Tippen as catcher. The score:

CONNECTING "LINK" TO BE IMPROVED

On Tuesday a meeting was held at Washington between the Road Supervisors of Carroll township and the county commissioners, with reference to the improvement of a section of the Pigeon creek and Taylor's run road located in Carroll township, which at the present time is badly in need of repair.

At this meeting it was agreed that the county commissioners would petition the next grand jury to have this portion of the road made a county highway, and would proceed immediately upon its approval, to improve it by rebuilding it with concrete, the expense of the improvement to be borne equally by the county and the township.

The section to be re-improved is about one mile long and connects two pieces of county road. Under the circumstances it was thought advisable by the representatives of the county and township that this connecting one mile should be rebuilt as a county road and become a part of the county road system. As a part of the building of a new bridge near the old Roth brewery over Pigeon creek, as the old structure is too light to bear up under the traffic which now passes over it.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR BENEFIT LAWN PARTY

At the meeting of the Home and Hospital Club of North Charleroi on Tuesday evening, arrangements were completed for the lawn party to be held June 21, on the ground opposite the school house on Fourth street. This is an ideal location for an affair of this kind and if weather conditions are favorable a pleasant evening is assured all who attend. The proceeds are to be given to the fund for the purchase of a X-ray machine for the hospital, which is much in need of that addition to its equipment.

MRS. WOODHALL IS CONVALESCING

The large circle of friends of Mrs. George Woodhall, formerly of Charleroi, but for the past year or so of Uniontown, will be pleased to learn that she is slowly convalescing from a most serious experience, and that her complete recovery is earnestly looked for in the near future. So many disquieting rumors have been circulated, from time to time, as to her actual condition, that, in order to allay the anxiety of her many friends, the following facts, relative to her case are herewith presented.

For a few days prior to April 29, a small, ornate, gasolene lamp on the first joint of the second finger of the right hand, which, however, did not appear to be of much consequence. However, on the evening of the twenty-ninth, the finger became swollen and badly inflamed, and it continued to grow more painful during the night. Punctures and various methods of treatment were resorted to in an effort to allay the pain, but these proved altogether ineffective. Mrs. Woodhall suffered intensely. Early the following morning Dr. Crow was called in for consultation, and he immediately pronounced the ailment as a blood poisoning.

afflicted member be lanced. This was done on Saturday afternoon, April 30, in two places, but the operation afforded the patient no immediate relief. In view of the rapid development of the trouble, another operation was decided upon, and on Sunday, May 1, Dr. Crow and Dr. Robinson performed the operation under an anesthetic and endeavored to eliminate the cause. Mrs. Woodhall's condition grew more alarming. The pain became practically unbearable, and on Tuesday, May 3, a third operation was decided upon, and it was performed that evening, eight drainage tubes being inserted through the hand. Somewhat relieved, the patient, for a couple of weeks, seemed to improve. It proved to be a temporary convalescence.

Some time about the last of May, Dr. Crow informed Mr. Woodhall that he was afraid that the finger, or the hand, was so badly diseased that it might be necessary to resort to amputation. Consequently, on Friday, June 3, it was decided that the following day, Drs. Crow, Robinson and Eberer should be removed, and on the following day, Drs. Crow, Robinson and Eberer did so. The operation showed that in addition to taking off the finger, it was necessary to cut down about one and one-half inches below the knuckle, "Y" shaped, in the palm of the hand, to remove all the diseased bone.

Mrs. Woodhall still suffers considerable pain, but it is hoped and believed that her hand is healing satisfactorily. When the pain abates as it does, intermittently, she soon rallies, and becomes just like her friends knew her when she was in good health. It is sincerely hoped that her complete recovery will soon occur.

FLY-SWATTING CAMPAIGN IS NOW ON IN FULL FORCE

PRETTY WEDDING THURSDAY EVENING

A very pretty appointed wedding took place at 5 o'clock last evening when Miss Olga Parenti daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Parenti of Belle Vernon, became the bride of George C. Irish, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Irish of Knoxville, Tennessee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. H. Greenlee, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Charleroi at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hickey of Speers. The bride, who was attended by Miss Nava Callisti, wore a gown of white organdie with hat to match. Joseph Davenport, an uncle of the groom, served as best man. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding supper was served for the immediate families after which Mr. and Mrs. Irish left on a short wedding trip. They will make their home in Tennessee.

NO MORE LIQUOR IN MEDICAL DRUGS

Broad and sweeping powers to restrict and eventually eliminate the sale of intoxicating beverages masked as medicines were granted to Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes on Wednesday by Justice Wendell P. Stafford in Equity Court, No. 1, Washington, D. C., in a decision denying the proprietor of a near-beer saloon an injunction to restrain the collector of internal revenue in that district from seizing the saloon and its contents to pay a tax of $1,982 for alleged illegal sale of liquor.

The effect of this decision, according to officials, is to place in Commissioner Haynes' hands a powerful and incontestable weapon against the sale of Horko Vino, peppermint concoctions, fruit extracts, etc., such as are now being sold by fruit and delicatessen stores all over the country. To put a permanent stop to the sale of these concoctions the prohibition commissioner has only to obtain the co-operation of the collector of internal revenue.

Agents of the collector must first visit a place under suspicion and determine whether or not these preparations are being sold as beverages. The collector then notifies the merchant that he must pay a tax for this illegal sale. If the merchant refuses to pay the tax, the collector, without even making a charge against the merchant, can seize his stock and sell it to recover the tax.

All this season's styles included in our half price sale of Ladies Suits and Coats. This is not a close out of last years old stock, but your unrestricted choice of the entire stock of this seasons goods at just half the regular price. Berryman's. 11t2*

Ten Prizes to be Offered to Those who Make the Highest Scores

SWATTERS ARE FURNISHED FREE

Mrs. E. D. Dawson, 429 Fallowfield avenue, has been asked to supervise the "Fly-Swattling" campaign, now in full force in Charleroi, by the State Health Department, in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce, the local Health Department and the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

At least ten prizes will be offered for the flies actually killed. These flies are to be taken to the Chamber of Commerce on Friday, July first, where they will be measured and the prizes awarded. The following committee has been named to make the award: Dr. J. W. Unter, W. M. Dobby, and J. S. Heffner.

Bowers and Hall have donated 400 fly swatters, which may be obtained from Mrs. Dawson, and others may be obtained from C. W. Davidson.

It is pointed out by the committee that every fly is the potential ancestor of millions of other flies. The destruction of these pests by swatters not only reduce their actual numbers but forever precludes the possibilities of their adding to the future fly population. Sticky fly paper accomplishes the same result as the swatter and has the advantage of working all the time. It plays an important part in the fly campaign.

The actual donors and their prizes will be published at a later date. The committee is anxious now that everybody shall give some time to lessening the number of flies.

Miss Grace Williamson.

Grace Williamson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Williamson, of 524 Washington avenue, died at the West Penn Hospital, Pittsburgh, this morning at 6:10 o'clock, aged 18 years. Miss Williamson was the youngest of the family, and her sudden demise is a great shock to her friends. She was to have been in the graduating class of the high school this year, when she was compelled to give up her studies on account of ill health. She was a member of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church. Funeral services will be held at the late home, on Washington avenue at 2 p. m., Sunday, conducted by Rev. John R. Burson, with interment in Monongahela cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Kramer of Charleroi and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heron of Monongahela took dinner at the Monongahela Valley Country Club last evening.

Mrs. S. E. Endress of Kansas City, Mo., is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mosier, Crest avenue.

CHINESE STUDENT WAS CALM

Slightly Disturbed by Soiled Necktie, but Not at All by Coming Important Debate.

It is only 15 years ago that Wellington Koo—to whose efforts are largely attributed the election of China to the council of the League of Nations—entered Columbia university, New York. In definite preparation for a diplomatic career he specialized in international law under Prof. John Bassett Moore, and it was in this subject that he took his Ph.D. degree with a thesis on "The Status of Aliens in China." He was one of the most active and distinguished of the Columbia undergraduates of his time, says the Detroit News. Not only was he elected to the Phi Beta Kappa, the most famous of the American college fraternities, but he became editor in chief of the Columbia Spectator.

As a debater, too, Mr. Koo made his mark among his contemporaries. In 1904 his speech turned the tide in favor of his own university in a debate with Cornell. The story is told that when the Columbia team reached Ithaca, the seat of the rival university, most of its members were in a state of blue funk, owing to the high reputation of one of their opponents. This attack of nerves was at its height when they sought out Koo. "Yes," he told them, "I, too, am worried. I have brought only one evening dress with me, and look at it—soiled! What is to be done?" His fellow debaters fled to the nearest haberdashery's and returned with half a dozen of assorted models. Koo selected one, arrayed himself, and in it went forth to the fray with a light heart.

OVERLOOK BEAUTY OF FERNS

Choice Varieties Seem Not to Be as Greatly Appreciated as They Should Be.

One of the things which the florists of the United States have neglected to a great extent is the growing of ferns. To be sure we see many beautiful specimens in the windows of city establishments, but very few of the more choice varieties, which are really just as easy to grow, provided a little care is taken with them. How many know, for instance, that there are scores of varieties of the "maidenhair"? The baby maidenhair is one of the daintiest of these, its leaves being but little larger than the head of an ordinary pin. Another variety which is especially beautiful is the New Zealand maidenhair. The stem of this fern flattens out as it nears the leaves, and the leaves themselves are superimposed one on another, which gives the effect of several shades of green. Of course there are also the gigantic tree ferns of the tropics, which have fronds from five to fifteen feet in length, the trunks sometimes being four or five feet in diameter, but these would hardly do for a lady's bouquet.

First American Airway.
The "cornerstone" of America's first airway from Washington to Dayton, Ohio, was laid at Bolling field, Washington, with appropriate ceremonies, designed as a part of the celebration of the anniversary of Lincoln's birth. High officials of the army, members of congress and aviators of note attended.

Army aviation officials described the event as a "milestone in the progress of American aeronautics." A feature of the dedication was the first public appearance of the American messenger airplane, one of the smallest in the world, which is planned to take the place of motorcycles for certain messenger work. The plane has a wing spread of only 20 feet and stands 7 feet high. It will carry a load of 240 pounds and with its 60-horse power motor makes 95 miles an hour.

Remarkable Belgian Gun.
One of the most curious products of the Belgian gunmakers' art, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, is now in the possession of a Colorado sportsman. This gun is remarkable for its arrangement of seven barrels in one, the composite tube with its cluster of parallel bores being about the size of a heavy-gauge shotgun barrel. Seven .22-caliber rifle cartridges are inserted in the breech openings, and fired simultaneously by a single firing pin and hammer. The shell ejector is a removable disk with seven holes, which swings back when the lock is opened.

Oak in Hall of Fame.
Before Basking Ridge, N. J., took its place in the world an oak stood there. The people of this New Jersey town can trace the tree's history for 400 years, but the church is only 200 years old. It has just celebrated that event. Miss Margaret Hitchcock of Morristown, and Mrs. William D. Baneker of Basking Ridge nominate the tree for a place in the Hall of Fame which the American Forestry association is compiling of trees with a history. The tree has a circumference of 15½ feet 6 feet above the ground.

Indian Chief Drives Auto.
An Indian Chief, Tony Tommy, of the Florida Seminoles, who still wear the garb of their forefathers, is the first of his tribe to buy and operate his own automobile. After a course of instruction at a garage in Miami, the chief now rolls into town each week from his village, near Fort Lauderdale, at the wheel of his machine, but with a pair of horn-rim glasses as his only other concession to the ways of the palefaces.

The Iberians.
The Iberians were an ancient people living at the mouth of the Iberus (Ebro) river in eastern Spain. Later the inhabitants of the entire peninsula were called Iberians. The term now is applied to the primitive Neolithic and bronze-age men whose remains and relics are found in ancient graves and grooves throughout western Europe. The race was characterized by long heads and short stature. The term Iberia still is frequently used in reference to Spain and Portugal, especially in literature, the expression Iberian peninsula being quite common.

Her Choice of Letters.
When mother brought Laura and Harriet a box of animal crackers, to be equally divided, Laura said: "I tell you what we'll do; we'll choose letters." "How's that?" asked Harriet. "I'll choose some letters and you choose some letters and then we'll take the animals whose names begin with those letters." Quick as a flash Harriet exclaimed: "I'll take L." Suspicious, Laura inquired: "Why are you so anxious for that letter?" "Because," replied Harriet, "then I'll get all the 'lphants'."

Best Grades Really Cheapest.
The purchase of a cheap grade of goods for any serious use, is very poor economy. Such goods soon give way, and the service they render, while they do last, is not satisfactory. To obtain a given amount of service one will spend more money on articles of cheap grade than upon those that are better. The obtaining of the same amount of pleasure and satisfaction from the use of a cheap thing and a good one is an impossibility.

Gold Mining Now Prosaic.
There is scant romance in gold mining today, when natural science has taken the place of pioneerism and chance. There is none at all in the recently published statement of a San Francisco magazine which announced that his workmen and expert geologists had blocked out $100,000 worth of ore in one Arizona mountain in the last two years, and that excavation and the production of bullion would now begin.

World's Largest Spring.
What is the largest spring in the world? Florida has one which must be near the head of the list. This is called Wakulla spring. It is 400 feet across, is 80 feet deep and flows at the rate of 120,000 gallons of water every minute. It gives rise to a river 270 feet wide at its source. This mammoth spring is situated about 15 miles from Tallahassee—Outlook.

Famous French Fortress.
Carcassonne, the walled city beside the snows of the Pyrenees, is the most famous medieval fortress in France, and has been preserved as a national monument. The old city stands on the summit of a hill overlooking plains in all directions, and is surrounded by two enormous walls, whose 52 pointed defense towers show completely the art of defense as understood between the Fifth and Thirteenth centuries. The Romans ruled here, then the Visigoths from Spain for three centuries, then the Saracens, and finally the French.

Milady Smoked Long Ago.
Smoking among women started when Sir Walter Raleigh offered the "divine weed" to Queen Elizabeth, but he almost paid the penalty with his life. So very sick did the few whiffs of tobacco make the royal lady that courtiers whispered Master Raleigh had poisoned her, and dark looks were his portion. Her highness recovered, however, and took a truly Elizabethan revenge by making the countess of Nottingham and all her maids smoke out a whole pipe among them.

Moroccans Making Little Progress.
The director of indigenous arts in Fez, Morocco, recently came upon a book written in the fourteenth century and describing Fez as it was at that time. The director has compared the statements in the book with Fez as it is today, and finds the book to be perfectly up to date. If repeated it would pass very well as a modern account of present day Fez. The people of Fez are still doing things just as they did them in medieval times.

Artistic Scottish Coins.
The "Bonnet Piece" was the name given to a beautiful coin of pure gold issued under the reign of James V of Scotland, the name being given because the head of the king on the coin was covered with a Scotch bonnet in place of the provincial crown. James was the first sovereign to place dates on coins issued, and coins he approved were exquisitely designed.

A BIRD IN HAND IS BETTER THAN TWO BIRDS BY MAIL

When you order a piece of goods by mail, you know nothing about the quality of the article delivered until it has been tested by use. Having been used and found wanting, you have to go to the trouble of sending it a long distance back for long-distance satisfaction, a very rare bird indeed.

Trade in a home store and you get quality. The local merchant must carry quality or his neighbors will not trade with him. And if there has been bad quality accidentally, it is only a step into his store to show him the error.

The merchants of our town have both quality and price. If you will only figure out the common sense of it, you will find that it is cheaper to trade at home in the long run, and the short run, too.

CONSISTENTLY INCONSISTENT.

The Leipzig court which is pretending to try war criminals at the demand of the Allies, after giving trifling sentences to three men guilty of shocking brutality to prisoners, has now acquitted a submarine commander, who sank a hospital ship on the ground that he obeyed the orders of his superior. Not content with this defense, the submarine commander brazenly asserted in court that he was right in sinking a hospital ship that dared to enter waters declared closed by the German government, and it was evident that both the German court and the German people shared such a view. This is the same public that demanded the execution of Captain Fryatt when he obeyed the orders of the British admiralty and tried to run down German submarines with his merchant steamer—the same public that approved the execution for "treason" of a brave French lad who refused to betray the whereabouts of a French detachment at the command of a German general.

London editors complain of the inconsistency of the Germans, but the Germans are and have been consistently inconsistent. Their established policy is to hold other nations to the strictest compliance with international law, and to even German rulings not recognized internationally, while for their own part committing the most shocking breaches and the most frightful atrocities on the ground of "military necessity." Whatever Germans may do in their own interests is right, however diabolical; but if people of other nations do anything to injure Germany and help themselves, they are guilty of "treason." In view of the German record, and German psychology it should never have been expected that the Leipzig trials could be anything but a farce.

Modern naval competition is all the more costly because of the very short career it grants warships. No less than 113 obsolete ones have just been consigned to the scrap heap by the British Admiralty.

Skies of Yellow and Blue.
A yellow sky is caused because the air is moist. Moist air is more transparent than dry, and it allows the yellow rays to pass. A blue sky is brought about by the weak blue rays reflected upward, which cannot get through and are sent back.

HUGE CROWDS WILL ATTEND MOTOR RACES

Reservations already made indicate that the crowd attending the sixth Universal Trophy race, 225 miles, at the Uniontown Speedway on Saturday afternoon, will be the greatest in the history of the Speedway. Reservations have been made by speedway fans from practically every state in the Union, from Canada and Mexico, and it is understood that a party from the diplomatic corps at Washington may be present for the occasion.

A telegram was received a few days ago stating that a delegation will fly to Uniontown today from McCook Field, at Dayton, Ohio. Members of this party have expressed a desire to witness the races from the pits in order to give close study to the performance of the engines.

The Speedway has been a very busy place during the past few days, drivers and their mechanics being on the job getting their machines in shape for the exciting contest which will take place Saturday afternoon. Many distinguished visitors will be present and a ready reservations at The Summit far exceed those of any other year.

Raleigh's Great Work.
H. G. Wells wasn't the first to write a world history of his own conception. Sir Walter Raleigh antedated him by several hundred years. Raleigh's "History of the World" was a voluminous and painstaking work, showing evidences of profound scholarship and research. It was composed while he was a prisoner in the Tower of London, and it was one of the marvels of the time that a man, under such circumstances, and so far removed from sources of research, could have been able to undertake and carry through such a task.

More Light on the Adam Family.
Referring to the recent statement of a scientist that the Garden of Eden was located in Ohio, we are reminded of the Scotch laird who told a famous singer that Gaelic was the language of Adam. The singer afterward spoke laughingly of the claim to another Scotchman, who remarked in all seriousness: "The laird was quite right. Dinna ye ken that the Garden of Eden was in Scotland? Dinna ye ken that Adam's name was McPherson?"—Boston Transcript.

Of the Family of Smiths.
The man who spells his name with a "y" and a final "t" is not the bombastic Smith that many suppose; the name was originally spelled in this manner. Gold and silver smiths, of course, were men who worked in these metals; brownsmith was a man who worked in bronze; a greensmith worked in lead. The word name Nasmith is thought to be derived from nail-smith.

Sleeping Sickness.
Medical experts disagree in their conclusions as to the exact nature of sleeping sickness. Some forms of "sleeping sickness" are not unlike brain fever, while others indicate symptoms much similar to spinal meningitis. Physicians advise caution against undue exposure to the disease until more exact knowledge of its cause is ascertained.

CHINESE HAVE OWN COURTS

Oriental in This Country Administer Justice Without Troubling the Regular Tribunals.

Completely isolated from any interference from the regular officers of the law, the Chinese have their own courts of law. Criminals against the law when punished are not halted before the white man's tribunal. As conclusive evidence, examine the dockets of any court in an attempt to find where one Chinese has issued a complaint against another, say the police. Quick execution, under the busy life of downtown Portland, is said to have been needed on so many men, while many others are above.

At any rate, that is the gist of one of the many tales told about police headquarters concerning Portland Chinatown, by an "unction" who should know. Most of the police are aware of the suspected existence of the tunnel. The numerous raids against gambling dens, which to the public are more or less routine affairs, are tinged with the thrill of adventure for the police, who wonder which one of their number will be the first to discover one of the entrances to the mythical passageway—Portland Oregonian.

Solidified Oil Economic Fuel.
French chemists have announced that they are meeting with signal success in the effort to save and conserve the fuel supply by a process which solidifies the oil and makes it in this shape much easier to handle and economical to burn as fuel.

At no distant date, it is promised, it will be possible to use the new product as substitute for heavy fuel oils in furnaces, locomotives, and for other industrial purposes where coal conservation is a big issue.

Not only will the product not be affected by changes of temperature, but it will also withstand combustion unless in direct contact with flames, while it is easily extinguishable by water. Preliminary samples already produced have proved too costly.

Looking Ahead.
Here is a new Northcliffe story from "The Mirrors of Downing Street." The eminent editor had a caller who raised his hat and made a profound bow to the elevator boy as the two men, Northcliffe and his friend, went up to the editor's rooms. When they came down the friend again raised his hat and bowed low to the boy. Northcliffe remonstrated with him.

"You shouldn't joke with these boys," he said. "It makes discipline difficult."

"Joke?" exclaimed the caller. "Good heavens, I wasn't joking. How do I know that tomorrow that boy will not be the editor of the Daily Mail?"

As It Was Pronounced.
"You have made a big mistake," said the boss. "I never saw that word in my life. It may mean 'ossified,' but even that word doesn't apply."

"But that is what you dictated," replied the stenographer, spelling and pronouncing from her notes.

"Ah, yes," returned the man. "I understand now. I said 'bona fide,' but I didn't expect you to spell it 'bon-fide.'"—Houston Post.

A CHARLEROI INTERVIEW

Mrs. Velletty Tells Her Experience.

The following brief account of an interview with a Charleroi woman five years ago, and its sequel will be read with keen interest by every citizen.

Mrs. Louis Velletty, 235 Prospect Ave., Charleroi, says: "I was troubled for years with swelling around my ankles and feet and found it hard to get around. A dull heavy pain in the small of my back made it hard for me to do my housework. Mornings I would wake up very sore and found great difficulty in bending or moving in any way. Rheumatic pains shot all through me and I often had a dragging feeling. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and purchased a box at Piper's Pharmacy. After taking two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured. I will take Doan's Kidney Pills and keep one in my pocket. (Statement given Jan. 2, 1911.)"

On December 1, 1928, Mrs. Velletty said: "I haven't had to use Doan's Kidney Pills lately and I tell everyone I know of a warning of their kidneys to try Doan's Kidney Pills. 510, at 211, 213, Center-Milburr Co. Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y."

NO SECOND PLACE FOR HIM

Corny Husk's Ambition Certainly Was Not Noble, but It Was His Ruling Passion.

Senator Hiram Johnson said in an after-dinner speech: "The radical movements of the day have achieved at least one good thing. They have taught our boys that there are nobler ambitions than the one to become a millionaire."

"When I was a boy the millionaire ambition was drilled into all of us, but today such an ambition seems as wrongheaded as Cornelius Husk."

"A traveler stopped his auto in front of old Corn Husk's place and said: 'How far is it to Quag, stranger?'"

"Corn took his pipe out of his mouth. 'Asked anybody else that there question?' he inquired."

"Yes; I asked the blacksmith down the road."

"Huh! Ye asked Jinks Hobson, did ye? Well, how far did Jinks say it was?"

"He said it was two miles."

"Five miles is the correct figger, stranger."

"With a disappointed oath the stranger pushed on again. To his astonishment he reached Quag in a few minutes. Instead of being five miles away, it was hardly a mile."

"The next week he happened on Corn Husk a second time."

"Look here," he said. "Why did you tell me it was five miles from your place to Quag? It's only about a mile."

"Jinks Hobson told ye it was two miles, didn't he?" said Corn calmly. "Well, Jinks thinks he's the biggest liar round these parts. I told ye it was five miles, stranger, so to show the gold-durn cuss he's got a hard man to beat, by crimsus, when he tries to git the best of Corny Husk."

FAMOUS OLD CITY

Geneva Figures Prominently in Pages of History.

Records Show Brave Fight for Independence Long Maintained Against Powerful, Unscrupulous Neighbors.

Geneva, the seat of the League of Nations, witnessed some fierce fighting in the days when the duke of Savoy sought to destroy its independence with the aid of a contingent of Spanish troops.

These mercenaries tried to rush the defenses at dead of night, but though some of them managed to get into Geneva, not one of them managed to get out again. Those who were not killed in action were afterward beheaded.

They still preserve at Geneva scaling ladders captured from the Spaniards on that memorable night, together with the caudron out of which a Genevan housewife, who had risen early to prepare her husband's breakfast, poured a deluge of scalding soup on to the heads of the enemy troops.

Another relic preserved at Geneva recalls the little band of exiles who worked together there at the translation of the Scriptures, known as the Geneva Bible.

On the eve of their departure for England they went in a body to the city fathers, who gave them, as the records show, "honorable license to depart, together with a testimonial of the satisfaction we have had in them, and an exhortation to act in their turn toward foreigners as we have acted toward them." Then they all wrote their signatures in the "Livre des Anglais," or Book of the English, which is carefully treasured in the Geneva archives.

Though Geneva for some hundreds of years has been a sovereign republic, much of the architectural beauty of the modern town is directly due to the generosity of a 16th-century reigning prince, Charles II, duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbutter.

The duke, who was born in 1507, succeeded at an early age to the throne, and governed so arbitrarily and cruelly that his subjects appealed to the German diet, which, after some negotiation deposed him and placed his younger brother on the throne. After this Duke Charles, who was very wealthy, wandered about Europe, making Paris his headquarters. On the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, in 1870, he finally settled at Geneva, where he died in 1873.

He had been an exile from his own land for more than thirty years, and it is he who had had any affection for it, he had perished during that time: so he constituted the city of Geneva his heir. His will was disputed by his brother and successor, Duke William, who demanded the family jewels and other treasure.

Before the case came into the courts the duke agreed to compromise, and the city came in for a legacy worth about four million dollars. This sum, or a considerable portion of it, has been spent in beautifying the town, building the quays and the elaborate Brunswick monument.

Mark Twain as a Typist.

Mark Twain appears to have been the first distinguished author to purchase a typewriter, and a letter typed by him to W. D. Howells on December 9, 1874—the very day the machine reached him—is still extant.

"I don't know," he tells him, "whether I am going to make this typewriting machine go or not; that last word was intended for a not; but I guess I shall make some sort of a success of it before I run it very long. I am so thick-fingered that I miss the keys. You needn't answer this. I am only practicing to get three—another slip-up there; only practicing to get the hang of the thing. I notice I miss fire—get in a good many unnecessary letters and punctuation marks. I am simply using you for a target to bang at. Blame my cats, but this thing requires a genius in order to work it just right."

Switzerland has found a new use for war profits. The Swiss who reaped an excess profit during the war can get an abatement of taxes if he will invest his surplus in residential housing under official regulation. The regulation guards against unsightly and insanitary buildings. It also requires rentals to yield only a fair return on the investment. If the war profiteer does not care to put his easy money into this useful channel of public service at a fair return, the state takes a large part of it from him and itself subsidizes the building of homes.

FIGURED IN NAPOLEON'S LIFE

Woman Set Down in History as One of the Most Beautiful of His Many Conquests.

Napoleon's life was one of fair women, but among them all few were more beautiful and more heartless than Marguerite Bellisle Fourès. Napoleon saw her in Cairo where she was honeymooning with Lieut. Fourès, having accompanied him in disguise on the transport. Napoleon promptly sent Fourès to Paris with alleged important dispatches and began to make love to the bride. He was successful, and she moved to a cottage near the palace. The English captured her husband and, knowing of Napoleon's acts in Cairo, they promptly sent Fourès back there, knowing he would seek revenge.

But he was a drop of water against the power of Napoleon. His wife was given a divorce, and he was sent to an obscure town in rural France. She then began to parade her capture, dressed in costly costumes, wore Napoleon's picture on a chain about her neck, and was with him constantly. His soldiers dubbed her "Cleopatra." When Josephine made up with Napoleon, and he was elevated to head of France, he left the fair Marguerite, although he gave her a small fortune. He also arranged a marriage for her with Henri de Kanchoup. Her husband was out of town much of the time, and she entertained with more brilliancy than discretion. She ended up by running away to Brazil with a young officer, where she lived happy and content until she was ninety-two years old.—Detroit News.

ENGLISH FIRST TO CHEW GUM

In the Year 1635 a Recipe for Its Manufacture Was Published in That Country.

Chewing gum isn't new, and it isn't American in origin, despite the fact that our English cousins keep telling us that gum-chewing is an American habit. In fact, they originated it themselves. John Bate, an English writer, gave a recipe for chewing in 1635. He called it "mouth glew." Here's the recipe:

"Take Isinglass and steep it in water until such time as you may easily pull it to pieces, put it into a glass or pot well loaded and set it in balneo; that is, in a pot of water on the fire. There let it remain until all, or most part of it, is dissolved; then strain it through a wide haire sieve; while it is hot, upon another course and close haire sieve, and when it is cold it will be like a thick jelly. If you would have it of a dainty smell and aromatick taste, put into it a little cinnamon bruised, and a little marjoram, and rosmariny flowers, while it is dissolving, and if you please a small quantity of brown sugar candy to give it a sweetish smatch."

This recipe is taken from a book called "Mysteries of Nature and Art."

French Papermaking History.

It was from the early Saracens that the art of papermaking was acquired by the French, and passed on to the other nations of Europe. The earliest papermakers of France were the vassals of the French nobility who pursued their occupation on the estates of their overlords, fabricating the precious material required for use by their masters, say the historians. Their production, together with that of the monks of the various monasteries, represented the only paper production activity of France, as it emerged from the gloom of the medieval ages.

The first specimen of paper to be found in France bearing an authentic date is a document purporting to be one of the bonds given to the Jews by a lieutenant of Richard I of England for the purpose of financing his crusade in the Holy land. It is dated 1190 A. D.

Ceylonese Plumbago.

Plumbago, Ceylon's most important mineral product, is known all over the world for its luster, lubricating, polishing and binding qualities. In appearance it is a strong black crystalline. There are now about 1,000 plumbago mines in Ceylon, including all the shallow pits, open works and deep mines. The depth varies from a few yards to as much as 700 feet. Most of the mines are worked by natives, the only important one controlled by Europeans being the Medapola. In the majority of the mines the only machinery used is the "dabare." This consists of a long wooden barrel with handles at each end. A rope is wound around this with a bucket fastened to each end. It is worked by seven or eight men turning the handle.

Time Has Brought Changes.

When I was a young lady I was extremely thin and tall, and very sensitive in regard to my figure. Our club was about to give a masquerade which I was anxious to attend, but realizing how hard it would be for me to disguise myself, and yet wish to represent something original, I remarked this to a young man at the club. He looked at me with a smile, and in the presence of all the other members said, in a most sarcastic voice, "Well, why don't you wear a rubber on your head and go as a lead pencil?" Oh, if he could only see me now, I know he would say, "put a couple of hoops around your waist and go as a barrel."—Exchange.

CAT DELIVERED ITS MESSAGE

Battle-Scarred Feline Proved It at Least Had the Courage of Its Convictions.

The other night I saw a clever cat. He sat on the fence in the moonlight, all alone, writes a correspondent of the Boston Herald. He looked up at the moon and opened his mouth. I braced myself for what I believed to be coming, namely, his effort at self-expression. But no, this was a clever cat. Like O. Henry, he dealt in clever surprises. In his attitude there was something of suspense. My waiting nervous system felt the strain of it. Then he gave voice to a great silence. He said nothing in a dramatic way. With a self-satisfied smirk on his pussy face he jumped off the fence gracefully and disappeared into the night. He was a clever cat. He did the unexpected in an original and artistic way. He annoyed me, for he failed to live up to my conception of cats, yet I felt a certain admiration for him.

The next night another cat sat on the fence. This was a great cat, though his appearance was far from prepossessing. He was scrawny, and his coat wore, all too plainly, the scars of many a "foughten field." The divine light of unmet burned in his eyes. He threw back his head and poured out his very soul in vigorous expression, sincere and earnest, though unappreciated. Nothing daunted by the lack of applause, or by the shower of missiles directed at his scarred person, he gave full vent to his message in a form which, though unconventional, seemed best to fit his muse. Then, with an air of utter abandon, he shook the dust of the fence from his unconcerned feet and disappeared. "This," thought I, my ears still ringing, "was truly a great cat. He had a message and he gave it. Let the world receive it or reject it as it will."

WHERE HUSTLE IS UNKNOWN

Mallorca Justly Entitled to the Appellation Given to It, "Island of Calm."

Mallorca, a tiny speck of an island in the Mediterranean, is a land of peace and ease. A great painter and writer who visited the island, has christened it "The Island of Calm," because there everyone moves, rests, talks, walks and conducts his courtships as if the day had 48 hours, the mile about 10,000 feet, and the span of human life 700 years, so little haste do they make in living and enjoying life. These people who take life so leisurely, are not lazy, shiftless or unpleasant in personal appearance or manner. They are intelligent, honest, capable of work, sober and economical. These characteristics, preserved throughout centuries of uninterrupted peace and tranquility, have made them peaceable, trusting and home-loving. The men are of medium height, strong and agile.

And as for the women, they possess the same lovely skin as the women of North America, features as if sculptured by Phidias or Praxiteles, and they walk like goddesses. But they know nothing of the "joy of living," due partially to ancestral Arabic influences and to the fact that their island has for so long been under strict religious repression.

Little Sign of Culture in Speech.

Americans are known the world ground for their short and nasal a's and many have been misled into broadening all their a's to prove their culture. But the original sound was as in "far" and "palm"; it is the first sound uttered by infants and still the most general sound of the letter on the continent of Europe. The "ah" sound was the most frequent for the letter in the earliest English or Anglo-Saxon, still considered the model and best usage in our language. The a in "ask" may be pronounced like the a in "bare" or "at," but, according to the Encyclopedia Americana, "with the majority of good speakers" it should be akin to the "ah" sound. Best authorities hold that the excessive use of the short a is most common in America, outside the greater part of New England. It is thus a provincialism, whereas the broadened a's may be indicative of travel, familiarity with the languages of Europe, and association with cultured people.

"Connoisseur" and "Dilettante."

The connoisseur is "one who knows," as opposed to the dilettante, who only "thinks he knows." The connoisseur is cognizant of the true principles of art, and through his knowledge is competent to pass a critical judgment concerning any art, particularly of painting, sculpture or music. He is of a higher grade than the amateur, and more nearly approaches the artist, whose rules of action he is familiar with, but does not practice. The dilettante may be a lover of the fine arts, science or letters, and may pursue any one of the arts in a desultory way and for amusement, and Lowell says of him: "The main characteristic of the dilettante is that sort of impartiality that springs from inertia of mind, admirable for observation, incapable of turning it to practical account."

PERIODS IN AGE OF EARTH

Figures Compiled by Geologist Are Certainly Interesting Though Perhaps a Little Startling.

A geologist describes by means of a graphic chart the comparative lengths of the different periods of the age of the earth. He places the age of the earth arbitrarily at 72,000,000 years, represented by a clock dial of 24 hours—3,600,000 years to each hour.

On the above basis the first six hours of the clock represent Azole time, the earliest conjectural period of the earth's formation—18,000,000 years; the next six hours Eozoic and the next eight Paleozoic time—18,000,000 and 24,000,000 years, respectively—periods of mineral and vegetable formations. In the next three hours animal life developed—Mesozoic time, 9,000,000 years—that is, from the twentieth to the twenty-third hour. Thus the last hour of the 24—3,000,000 years of geologic time—represents Neozoic time, which includes the appearance of human life in the Quaternary period.

This last division of the 24 hours, the Quaternary period, is shown as only ten minutes—in other words 300,000 years. The existence of human life on the earth, therefore, bears the same relation to the age of the earth as ten minutes does to twenty-four hours. But since the period of written history is estimated roughly at only 6,000 years, this last division is not shown on the chart, since it would only be 12 seconds in duration.—Scientific American.

POPULAR SPORT IN PANAMA

Duel to the Death Between Bull and Jaguar Is Considered Height of Entertainment.

The Panamanian who is a real sport delights in nothing so much as a fight between a jaguar and a bull. One must visit the isthmus to see this particular kind of sport.

An enormous cage, strongly built of scantlings and iron bars, is placed in the center of the ring ordinarily used for bull fights. A bull is placed inside of it and presently one of the huge South American cats is wheeled up in a smaller cage and introduced into the barred inclosure. The latter is about ten feet high, with twice that length and breadth.

In the fight which then ensues the bull is victorious usually. Not more than once in ten such contests does the jaguar prove the victor. This would not be the case if the animals were not restricted to so narrow a space; but the big cat, being obliged to rely mainly upon its activity, does not have a fair chance.

Nevertheless, the duel greatly delights the spectators. The fair Panamanians shriek with excitement, and the little Panamanians read the air with yells.

Fish Thrive Under Water.

Water never gets colder than about 39 degrees. So no matter how thick the day, and no matter how thick the ice upon the stream or lake, the fishes are enjoying a temperature of about 39 degrees, and they move about in the water and gather supplies very well at that temperature. Through the clear ice one may see fish with their backs against it, where the temperature must be 32 degrees, and if you strike the ice above them lightly they dart away with pretty good speed. If you will strike the ice immediately above them with the back of an ax, or a sledge hammer, you will kill the fish. The concussion does the business and the fish will turn up its white belly upward, always. It is a common enough thing in some regions for the boys to kill the fish through the ice, and then to cut a hole and get them out.

The Tunnel's Part in Progress.

In the history of civilization the tunnel has played a mighty part. In Europe the St. Gothard tunnel through the Alps is famous; it connects Goshenen with Airoto, in Switzerland, and is over nine miles long. The Simplon, which also penetrates the Alps, is reckoned one of the seven modern wonders of the world; it is 12½ miles in length. Still another Alpine bore is the Wasserfuh, two miles in extent from entrance to entrance. Another notable tunnel is the Khojak pass, in India.

Among the important American tunnels is that which penetrates the Cascade mountains, in Washington; the Cumberland, under the Cumberland mountains in Tennessee; the Hoosac, in Massachusetts, and the tunnel under the Detroit river.—Harry C. Drum, in Leslie's.

Revolving Door Etiquette.

The etiquette of the revolving door has yet to be standardized. At present there are two schools of opinion on the subject. One holds that when a man and a woman approach a revolving door it is the man's place to go first, pushing the door slowly so as to allow his partner to follow in the next compartment without any effort on her part. The other contends that ladies first still holds sway. It is good manners, these theorists say, for the man to step aside, let the woman start the door revolving, and then jump into the compartment behind her. In this way, it is contended, the man may assume control of the door and guide it until the woman ahead of him is safely out. The bitterest rivalry prevails between the two schools.—Argonaut.

MEETING OF EAST AND WEST

Peculiar Circumstances Under Which American Physician Treated Inmate of Persian Harem.

One day, a great-aunt of the shah sent a note to the dispensary, asking for a visit to her daughter, who was ill, writes Mary W. Gibson, in Asia Magazine. Her messenger conducted my Armenian nurse, who acted as interpreter, and we through the garden, with its fruit trees and decorative shrubs and marble pool, into the women's quarter. A servant ceremoniously arranged two green velvet armchairs in the exact center of the room for the mother and me.

Soon all the women of the household gathered around us, for a visit from a foreign woman doctor was a most entertaining diversion in the monotonous domestic routine. The patient entered dramatically at the proper moment and sank into a luxurious pile of brocade cushions beside the korsi (table), which was covered with white velvet stenciled in black. A samovar of hot water was carried in, and two servants brought a silver basin and poured out the water from a slender silver urn for me to wash my hands. Then the patient lay down on the korsi that I might examine her, and all her attendants crowded around her and excitedly and vociferously urged her to be brave and not to worry, until such a pandemonium was raised that I could not hear the interpreter or my own voice.

When they quieted down and I found it possible to proceed with the examination I continued it. I was offered the silver basin again, and served with tea and sweet cakes, while I discussed the case. I decided that an operation was necessary.

A few days later an operating table was brought into the house. In a large reception room, the door of which was covered with the most beautiful rugs I had ever seen, the operation was performed. The doctor who had arranged for me to visit the Persian lady was asked whether I would rather have a fee or a carpet, and it was decided that I would prefer a carpet. A few days later when I called on the patient, she told me that she had sent her agent to the bazaar to buy me a carpet, and he had returned with word that there was no carpet in all the bazaar honorable enough for the lady doctor. So she invited me to select from her palace any rug that pleased me. My protestations were futile. I had to wander through the great rooms, followed by a procession composed of the ladies of the household, the attendants and servants, and find an honorable carpet. I examined them all and selected a lovely Kurdistan rug with an old-rose background and green border. This was promptly rolled up by the servant and carried to the patient, who said that I must have been accustomed to fine carpets all my life, for I had chosen the rarest rug in her possession. I was much embarrassed and tried to refuse the too princely gift, but she insisted that I must have it—and I carried on to America my most exquisite memory of Persia.

Oh, What a Tangled Web.
I was visiting in the country one summer, and did not bring a wrap. One night it was quite cold, and a friend of mine came to take me for a drive. I was anxious to make a good impression. He insisted that I wear a coat. I said I did not need one. He was so persistent that finally I told him a friend had borrowed my coat. Then he insisted that we go straight after it. So off we started for the girl's home. I ran up the stairs to her room, resolved that if her coat was not in her room I would stay there rather than come down without it. It was there, however, and I took it and ran downstairs. We didn't get out of the yard soon enough for me, for I was afraid some of the family would see us, and there would be an explanation due.—Chicago Tribune.

Much of our natural gas in this country is wasted, because the wells are too far from industrial centers or their output too small. This is particularly the case in Louisiana, Texas, Wyoming and parts of California.

The United States bureau of mines has been studying the possibilities of utilizing this waste gas for the production of chloroform and other chemicals of value, such as carbon tetrachloride and methyl chloride. The conclusions drawn are highly favorable. Use of the gas for these products would be restricted to "dry" gases, which are of no value for yielding gasoline. For the latter purpose "wet" gases from wells in isolated places are profitably available.

Solar Eclipse.
Apropos of the annual eclipse of April 8, 1921, Doctor Crommelin writes in Nature that the occurrence of a central solar eclipse within the limits of the British Isles is a rare event. There has been no British total solar eclipse since 1724, and the next one will occur in 1927, if we disregard that of January 24, 1925, in which the track of totality merely grazes the Western Hebrides and the eclipse occurs with a very low sun. The last annular eclipse before that of the present year was in 1858 and there will not be another until 2003.—Scientific American.

WOMEN WHO CANNOT WORK

Read Mrs. Corley's Letter and Benefit by Her Experience

Edmund, S.C. — "I was run down with nervousness and female trouble and suffered every month. I was not able to do any work and tried a lot of medicine, but got no relief. I saw your medicine advertised in a little book that was thrown in my door, and I had not taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I could see it was helping me. I am keeping house now and am able to do all of my work. I cannot say enough for your medicine. It has done more for me than any doctor. I have not paper enough to tell you how much it has done for me and for my friends. You may print this letter if you wish." — ELIZABETH C. CORLEY, care of A. P. Corley, Edmund, S.C.

Ability to stand the strain of work is the privilege of the strong and healthy, but how our hearts ache for the weak and sickly women struggling with their daily rounds of household duties, with headaches, nervousness and almost every movement brings a new pain. Why will not the mass of letters from women all over this country, which we have been publishing, convince such women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help them just as surely as it did Mrs. Corley?

'MYSTERIOUS' CLOCK AT FIRST NATIONAL

The First National Bank has installed a "mysterious" clock, which operates and keeps correct time without the use of works, magnets, electricity or air control. The clock is placed in the window on Fifth street, near the corner, where passers-by can get the correct time day or night by glancing at this mysterious time-keeper.

The great question in connection with his clock is, "what makes it go?" and a little pamphlet issued by the Bank will answer that question. It will tell you that the revolution of the earth on its axis every 24 hours possesses both a rotary and centrifugal force. The rotary force is neutralized so we do not notice it, by the tremendous size of the earth's sphere, and the centrifugal force is neutralized by the magnetic attraction which causes articles to fall instead of fly out into space when dropped.

By supplanting this neutralization of the rotary motion of earth in its daily revolution by a counter-balancing influence secured by means of a bisecting spheroid to which a magnetic compass is attached, and by astronomically calculating the proper reduction in size so that the circumference of the clock's dial bears the same relationship to its axis as the circumference of the earth bears to its axis of the earth, and also utilizing the attraction of the moon to the earth, which is felt upon the hour hand of the clock when this neutralization is removed by the above mentioned scientific discovery, then the hands are allowed to rotate in accord with the revolutions of the earth, the same as the earth rotates on its axis, except that the calculation is such that the hands of the clock make two revolutions to the earth's one. If this is not clear, ask any member of the Bank's force.

DAMAGE DONE TO BOOKS
AT POLLING PLACES

Complaint is made from some sections of the borough that the polling lists, placed on the outside of the polling places, are being interfered with, and in some cases damaged and destroyed by children. One case is mentioned where the book, after having several leaves torn from it, was later completely destroyed. According to law these books must be placed at the polling places for the benefit of the registered voters of the community, and any mutilation is the cause of great annoyance, not alone to the voters, but to the register as well who wishes to have the book kept in the best shape possible.

Holiness Meeting This Evening

A holiness meeting will be held this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence England 203 McKean avenue. The Rev. George Anderson of Stockdale will deliver the message.

OF MIXED BLOOD

Population of Scotland Made Up of Six Races.

Scotts Tribe, Originally Irish, Gave
Their Name to the Country, According to the Historian.

The Scotch reached Scotland from Ireland and are not the descendants of Gaelic Celts who had been pushed north by a later (British) invasion of Britain. The first authentic information on Scotland dates from the time of the Romans, 79 A. D. Roman rule in Britain came to an end in 410, and Britain then ceased to be part of the Roman empire.

The population of Scotland is made up of Pictish, Irish, British, Saxon, Danish and Norman elements, all of them intermingled, the three first, Celtic, the three last, Germanic peoples. The Picts contributed the bulk of the population, but were overcome by the Scotts (Irish), who had settled in Dalriada, a part of the present county of Argyll. The Scotts then became the dominant people.

Bythelie Celts dwelt in Strathclyde their chief city was Dumbarton (Dum Breton, "Fort of the Britons"). Toward the close of the eighth century the Danes appeared and razed the coast settlements and the Scotts. The Saxons first appeared in 428 in Britain. In the eleventh century Norman refugees first crossed the border into Scotland.

The first fresh colonization in Scotland took place toward the end of the second century, but the kingdom of Dalriada was not effected until the close of the fifth. It is the Scotts who have given their name to Scotland. The relations between the two countries were very close and lasted 100 years, or at least up to the Reformation, and the early literature and civilization of Scotland belong to Ireland.

According to legend, the name Scotch is derived from Scott, a daughter of one of the Harolds. The word is probably related etymologically to the German Schatz and means "treasure" originally, and therefore in all medieval Latin texts down to the end of the fifteenth century, it meant only Ireland. Since that date it means specifically Scotland. The word Scott, Gaelic, calls himself Scotts, but Gael, or to indicate his country, Alastair, English-speaking Highlanders even though Scotchmen, are Saxons in the end of a Gael. In the fifteenth century, when English became the predominant speech in the Lowlands, the Gaelic and non-Gaelic Scotch called Gaelic "Erse." Since the sixteenth century the name Scotch has been applied to the English spoken in the Lowlands. So by a strange freak of fortune, Scotch, originally applied to a variety of Celtic, has come to mean Broad Scotch or Quaint English, a language of Germanic origin.

The distinction made between the Highlands and Lowlands of Scotland is correct merely so far as the physical configuration of the country is concerned, but incorrect if a racial significance is read into it. There is a racial distinction, but Scotland is a country of two races, Celtic in the North and Teutonic in the South, and that the latter element has displaced the former. No doubt the Lowland Scotchman is a person of very composite blood, but he is above all a Celt—then a Pict, Dr. Joseph Dalton Hooker, Anthropological Society of Washington, in the Scientific American Supplement.

Would You Like a New Name?
How many of us, if we had the chance, would change our Christian names?

Lady Kitty Vincent, writing to the London Daily Express, declares that there should be a law that the name given by our godfathers and our godmothers in our baptism should not be considered binding. When we reach the years of discretion, she says, we might be allowed to change them. Her ladyship continues:

New York's First Hotel.

The earliest hotel on record in New York city was Krueger's tavern, about 1622, replaced in 1703 by the King's Arms. At about the time that the town became English a proclamation was issued regulating the inns, with the stipulation that meals were not to cost more than eightpence nor beer sixpence the quart. Today the only check on profiteering comes through the natural law of competition, but for the purpose of advising guests of intended charges rates for room and board must be posted conspicuously on the premises.

Kills Mountain Lion.

Cougars, when hungry, will sometimes tackle a porcupine for a meal, and always with the result of striking the mucous membrane of the mouth full of quills, from the wounds of which death is almost sure to ensue. When I was with an expedition in the Big Horn mountains, a fine mountain lion was found dead; upon examination it was soon ascertained that it had been the victim of an experience of this kind.—American Forestry Magazine.

CAREERS FOR YOUNG BRITONS OF EVERY RACE AND TONGUE

Compared With Opportunities in America They May Be Said to Be Decidedly Limited.

Here in America we are quite likely to take for granted that if a man has a good education, then his finding of an opportunity to apply it profitably is a comparatively simple matter. Certainly our whole educational program, and especially our whole line of educational appeal and propaganda, will have to be changed the moment that assumption is no longer to be made. Whiting Williams writes in Scribner's, "Equip yourself, Young America, and the country's yours?" we say in effect to our youth whether in school or at work.

In Britain there is much testimony to the effect that that assumption is not thus to be made.

Unless they spend additional years training for medicine, the law, or other of the professions, graduates of the universities must pretty much expect to find berths in the civil service. The exams for that are extremely difficult. Those who come out of them with marks at the top of the list get the best of the positions in the most important departments at home. They next go out to India or other provinces. While those below them take the second grade of the places here—and so on.

The pay starts at about £200 (nominally $1,500, and considerably more in buying power), with gradual yearly increases up to a certain maximum and a pension.

TAUGHT LESSON BY HUNGER

Good Story of How Franklin Was Converted to the Idea of Fish as Human Food.

One day Benjamin Franklin—James Parton tells us in his "Life of Benjamin Franklin"—was on a sloop which was becalmed on a certain island. The sailors, as is still the custom when a ship is becalmed, amused themselves by fishing. Franklin witnessed the catching of the fish with regret. But soon there came to tantalize his nostrils a most alluring odor from the frying pan. So, as Franklin used to tell the story, he went over his reasoning again to see if there was not a flaw in it.

It occurred to him that when the fish were opened he had seen smaller fish in their stomachs.

"Ah!" said Franklin. "If you eat one another I don't see why we may not eat you!"

So Franklin dined upon the fish very heartily, and thereafter ate what others ate. When telling this story Franklin ended with an observation which is often attributed to Talleyrand, but which we are assured was a familiar joke with Franklin. This was:

"So convenient a thing it is to be a reasonable creature, since it enables one to find or make a reason for everything one has a mind to do!"

Persian Bread Has Many Uses.

At Kasvin, Persia, a British patrol base, we were lodged in empty wards of the military hospital, writes Mary E. Griscom in Asia Magazine. Our provisions had almost given out by this time, and we were reduced to Persian stone bread. So far as I know, only the coconut and the bamboo serve more purposes than the flaps of Persian bread, which are about two feet long, one foot wide and a quarter of an inch thick. If it is raining, the Persians use them on their heads as umbrellas; and if it is sunny, as parasols; in winter, they wrap the flaps around their shoulders. If they do not need them for protection they roll them up and carry them under their arms. In the hospitals they spread them out on empty beds to dry.

Every year thousands of Chinese pilgrims risk their lives in climbing up the side of Hwa-Shan, the Flowery mountain, which is sacred to the Taoist religion. Any one reaching the temple far above is supposed to have any request granted as a reward for valor and endurance. The Hwa-Shan mountain is over 6,000 feet high, and the ascent in many places must be made along a narrow ledge of branches laid on posts driven horizontally into the face of the precipice. There are no handrails, but a chain held on a rock face offers some security to the ascending or descending pilgrim.

Entrance Must Have Made "H.C."

One Sunday morning a crowd was standing on the depot platform, a short distance from our home, waiting for an excursion train. The night before we had hung curtains around the broad front porch, and were sleeping out there on our steel-wired cot. It was very warm. I was sleeping close to the edge and when my wife got up rather suddenly over went the cot and I rolled out onto the lawn, clad only in my night-shirt, in plain view of the waiting crowd.

I didn't go with my wife to meet the returning excursion that evening.—Exchange.

Two Methods.

"Now that you are earning a bigger salary," said the wife with social ambitions, "surely we can afford a bigger flat?"

But the husband was a man of simple tastes.

"We're very comfortable here," he said. "But if you like we'll ask the landlord to raise the rent."—Tit-Bits

All Peoples of the Earth Represented in the Millions Seeking Homes in This Country.

Armies equal in size to the one we sent to France land every two years on our shores, and at the present time millions are said to be waiting to enter. Since 1890 more than thirteen million immigrants have entered this country, and approximately one-third of our present population of more than one hundred millions are immigrants or the children of immigrants. Two-thirds of the population of New York state and three-fourths of that of our great cities are foreign born or the children of foreign-born parents. From a fourth to a half of the population of the large cities of the South are negroes. Already we are the most heterogeneous people on earth; here are found representatives of every race and tongue and culture in the world, and still they continue to come in enormous numbers. It is doubtful whether any other migration in the history of mankind compares in magnitude with that which has been converging on America during the past twenty years. The sources and magnitude of this migration are indicated by the following general summary: Of more than thirty million persons in this country who are foreign born or the children of foreign-born parents there are from eight to nine million Germans, four to five million Irish, about three millions from Great Britain, about three million Slavs, from two to three million Scandinavians, more than two million Italians, and about two million Hebrews, while all other races and nations constitute about five millions.—Edwin Grant Conklin, in Scribner's.

NEW PARISIAN DANCE STEPS

Pleasure Seekers of the French Capital Practice Futurist Movements With Warlike Names.

Paris has something new in dancing. She is introducing no fewer than three futurist dances; the machine gun, the shrapnel and the airman's dance.

A poet of futurist tendencies is the culprit. Being conservative enough to love the waltz and confessing unashamed to many happy moments during the lancers, we trust that remorse will be his lot.

So far we have only read a brief description of one of these measures, the airman's dance, and that simply tells us that the dancers imitate the motions of a monoplane starting on a flight and soaring away.

The shrapnel dance should be easy enough, for it is only necessary to turn up at any dancing hall and see people who remind one instinctively of a creeping barrage. There are also plenty of duels to heighten the effect.

What to make of the machine gun dance, however, puzzles us, for although there are men and even women, who can talk as fast as a machine gun firing, we have never seen a dance that was anything like the real thing.

London Tired of Jazz.

The "jazz" is dead in London, says P. J. S. Richardson, one of the foremost English authorities on dancing. He declares that no new dances will be popularized this year, but the fox-trot, one-step and tango, which have held international interest for two or three seasons, will be standardized. "Previously those taught the same dances by different teachers found themselves hopelessly at sea when they tried to dance together," he said. "Through standardization on which the majority of dancing instructors in London have now agreed, a common framework in the steps will be insured without eliminating all chance of introducing individual variations. Frivolous and eccentric flight gymnastics such as exaggerated forms of 'jazz' are rapidly passing out."

Paul Donahoe, blind lawyer and musician, who is in town on a visit from Atlanta, gets around over the city and over the whole United States without any assistance, because he "hears" the walls and posts and every other material obstacle in his path. "I can follow the building line along the sidewalk by sound," he says. "I can hear a tree or post very distinctly. I think it is a sense that every one has, but that one does not develop unless he is blind. I call it sound because I find that when there is an overwhelming noise I cannot do it."

Over the Earth's Shoulder.

Ocean voyages are sometimes shortened considerably by going over the shoulder of the earth," as the navigators say, the Nebraska State Journal observes. The same thing is true, of course, of air travel. When an attempt is made to fly over the Pacific ocean from San Francisco the shortest way will not be directly across, as a study of the map would indicate. Instead, the fliers will go hundreds of miles northward, skirting the Aleutian Islands and in this way saving a great distance as well as securing the advantage of more numerous landing places.

The earth will soon be charted for air travel and the lines for long distance flights will be circular more often than direct.

Coal in Ancient Times.

Medieval writers usually refer to coal as "sea-coal" (carbone maritimi, or carbo de mari), in order to distinguish it from charcoal (carbons). The name evidently arose from the fact that it was brought to some places by water. The name was, however, used of coal which was carried into Chester from Eborac, and of that found in the middle of Derbyshire. In the reign of Elizabeth coal was procured by the barons, the barons to the town.

Honey Mentioned in Bible.

There are references to honey in the Bible in the sacred books of the Hindus and in the Koran. In the last ten honey has for ages been esteemed as a favorite and old honey as an nutriment. Honey was one of the materials which the Egyptians used in embalming and others of the ancients used it as a food preservative. There was a considerable traffic in honey in the East and honey was packed in honey were shipped long journeys.

Diners Follow the Leader.

"People are like sheep," said the cynical writer. "When a dinner is to be ordered for a party of six there is generally one master mind who will select the kind of soup he wants. Almost invariably the others will take the same kind. So it goes down the line. There is no individuality. Yes, I admit I usually suggest the more expensive dishes to the master mind. It costs the check."—New York Sun.

Famous French Soldier.

Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac was a famous French military officer and explorer and the founder of Detroit. He was born about the year 1690 and died in 1760. His landing on the site of the present city of Detroit was made July 24, 1701. After founding the settlement, he remained there until 1711. He was later governor of Louisiana for five years, returning to France where he died.

No Tides in the Great Lakes.

There are no tides in the Great Lakes similar to what occur in the oceans, for the reason that those bodies of water are too small and irregular. Occasionally, however, tidal waves occur in one or more of the lakes, due to atmospheric conditions, such as great differences in atmospheric pressure and the prevalence of gales.

Patience and Insensibility.

A phlegmatic insensibility is as different from patience, as a pool from a harbor. Into the one, indolence naturally sinks us; but if we arrive at the other it is by encountering many an adverse wind and rough wave, with a more skilful pilot at the helm than self, and a company under better command than the passions.—Dilwyn.

No Stars on Flag.

We are accustomed to speak of the "stars" on the flag. As a matter of fact, the national banner has no stars emblazoned on it. They are heraldic "nautils," or five-pointed representations of the rowels of the spurs of a knight. Thus we have today on the flag a rowel, and not a star, for every state in the Union.

To Avoid a Colorless Life.

"Anyway, having the blues keeps a man from leading a colorless existence," an exchange remarks. Quite so, brother, but there are better ways of avoiding that, namely by keeping in the pink of condition, being well read, treating everybody white and doing things up brown.—Boston Transcript.

The Unattainable.

Columbus discovered America in 1492. Thereafter the efforts of mankind were concentrated upon discovering the North pole and a cure for colds. The North pole eventually was discovered. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Might Send Her Away Happy.

Lucerella Borza—"I shall put some poison in her soup tonight." Rolanda—"Oh, Lucerella, how can you be so heartless! Let her have a good meal first; put it in her dessert."—Princeton Tiger.

One teaspoonful of seawater in ammonia in one gallon of water is an excellent combination for watering your fern occasionally. Use this not more than once a month. It will make ferns grow.

About Colors.

Is your room small? Then avoid yellow and red in its furnishing. They are warm colors and make a room look small. Use grays and violets to give a "roomy" effect.

Fine Scheme.

Farmers in Denmark are required to number and initial each egg sent to market. If one or two eggs are bad the farmer is fined; if three are bad he is boycotted.

Clever.

Correspondent thinks that the person who invented the phrase "Say it with flowers" probably noticed that "floral" is largely "oral."—Boston Transcript.

Young and Beautiful.

"I never try to fool my husband," she said, and when her friend registered inquiry she added, "because trying isn't necessary."

The Sowers.

While young men are busy sowing wild oats, older ones are growing sage.—Ashland (Mo.) Bugle.
